a service aimed at...

kanvio

/ entrepreneurs and intrapreneurs on the point of taking on a new function or embarking on a new project / executives and managers preparing for promotion taking on a new position is an opportunity for a “moment of change”. the first meeting with the new team gives the first impression of your leadership style, which to a great extent will determine your success.

from this point, the first one hundred days are crucial for developing your team and inspiring them to work on the design and subsequent roll-out of a powerful vision. after the first one hundred days, it's too late.

at “moments of change”, organizational systems are more open to change; this there offers you an opportunity to make changes.
